Trade Association Memberships

Like many corporations, Nofar Energy is a member of various industry trade organizations. Many of these organizations engage in lobbying activities, and some operate their own political action committees. Nofar Energy may not necessarily agree with every position taken by each organization of which it is a member or of the other members of such organizations; however, Nofar believes that, on a whole, membership in and contributions to such organizations are consistent with promoting the public good, which is aligned with the company's overall business objectives. When Nofar Energy makes payments to these organizations, including membership fees and dues, we restrict the organization from using the funds for any election-related activity in every country in which we operate.
